ECHO RIVER EXPLORED

Mysterious Stream in Mammoth Cave Affected By Drouth.

NEVER SO DRY BEFORE.

Secrets of Its Bed Are Being Revealed and Its Exit May Be Discovered.

Startling discovery has just been made in Mammoth Cave, which is undeniably the effect of the drouth which has prevailed over this section for ninety days, says the Bow Green Messenger.

In some of the avenues where water from ten to fifteen feet stood it is now perfectly dry. In some places where people can walk with ease and safety the oldest guide or visitor cannot remember to have seen the places without water.

The effect is more noticeable on Echo river than any place. That famous stream which normally can only be traversed for a short distance, owing to the water and the roof of the cave being so near each other, can now be traveled for miles, and it is claimed that the echoes, grand at all times, have been intensified thousands of times by the low water.

Many of the avenues and inlets not known to have existed before have been discovered, and at the present water stage many miles of avenues and grottoes can be seen.

While the water is low an effort will be made to locate the exit of the Echo river, and this may result in some wonderful discoveries. Many local people who have visited the cave often, some as many as a dozen times, are going to the cave to see Echo river under present conditions.

This is the first time in the history of Mammoth Cave, more than a hundred years, that the water has been so low as at present, and those familiar with the cave claim that it will probably be two months until the river and other waters will rise to a normal condition.

NEW STAMP SERIES

Will Include All Denominations To $1.

Postmasters have received information from Washington that the post office department is preparing to issue a new series of postage stamps of new design, known as the series of 1908, and that stamp books containing the new stamps will be issued about November 16. Requisitions for postage stamps will be filled with the old design until the present supply is exhausted unless postmasters indicate that the new design is wanted.

The new designs will include 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 10 and 50 cent and $1 denominations. The one-cent stamp will bear the head of Benjamin Franklin in profile from Hudson's bust. All other denominations will bear the head of George Washington in profile. The border design will be identical, the head being an ellipse on one end with laurel leaves on either side of the ellipse. Above the head will be the "U. S. Postage," and below will be the denomination. The size and shape will be the same as the issue of 1902.

PROBABLE DISSOLUTION

Will Be Result of the Federal Court Opinion.

The decision of the United States court means the probable dissolution of the American Tobacco company. Such is the opinion of Judge George Du Relle, United States District Attorney, who is familiar with the case, having watched it from its incipicy. The special counsel for the government is former assistant district attorney McReynolds, with whom Judge Du Relle was once associated. When the case was instituted Mr. McReynolds came to Louisville and was engaged several days taking depositions.

OTHER DEFENDANTS.

In addition to the American Tobacco company, the defendants named in the government's suit included the Imperial Tobacco Co., the British American Tobacco Co. and the United Cigar Stores company, and fifty-nine other small corporations. The suit was filed July 10, 1907, and asked specifically for the appointment of receivers for the various defendant companies.

DAMMED RIVER

To Collect Water for Baptizing Purposes.

The meeting which had been in progress at Forston Baptist church (colored) for about two weeks, closed Sunday. There were sixteen additions to the membership and the converts were baptized in Little River Sunday afternoon by Rev. J. L. Allenworth, the pastor, who conducted the series of meetings. On account of the low stage of water in the river, a dam was built across the stream in order to collect enough water for the purpose.

Bobbie E. Udo has filed suit for divorce from Everit Udo. Plaintiff prays the court for an order of attachment on the property of the defendant also. The parties were married in February, 1907, and lived together until June 10, 1908, states the petitioner. They reside near Church Hill.

CALLOWAY'S PRIMARY.

Nominees and Their Majority of Votes.

Murray, Ky., Nov. 5.—The following is a list of the successful candidates in Tuesday's primary here. The figures are the majorities:

County judge, Phillips, 70; county attorney, Barnett, 41; county court clerk, Falwell, 257; school superintendent, Grogan, 675; circuit clerk, Lancaster, 32; sheriff, Holland, 18; jailer, Anderson, about 170; assessor, Rogers, about 208. It is possible that Henry was elected surveyor.

BEAT NIGHT RIDERS.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 6.—Lewis Johnson, who raised a big crop of anti-Equity tobacco this year and defied the night riders, has warehoused it all and feels safe as well as relieved. The precautions which he took to keep the plants secure were many and expensive, including armed guards at the patch and a searchlight operated from the roof of his house.

He gained his point, and he says that it is enough for any Kentuckian.

BARNES TO BE THE SALESMAN

Tobacco Association In Session Yesterday To Elect Officers.

MANY CANDIDATES.

Only One Contest Ended at the Hour of Going To Press.

The County Committee of the Tobacco Association met in adjourned session yesterday to elect officers. Interest centered in the race for salesman, which pays twenty-five cents per hoghead. There were three candidates, S. G. Buckner, the present incumbent, Geo. W. Barnes, of Carl, and Jas. H. Pyle.

The committee went into executive session and at noon announced that Barnes had been elected.

On the first ballot the vote stood Buckner 12, Barnes 12 and Pyle 4. When Pyle was dropped Barnes was elected by a vote of 16 to 12.

For Inspector, there were four candidates—F. M. Quarles, the incumbent, T. D. Jameson and D. C. Williams, Pembroke, and R. C. Crenshaw, of this city. R. M. Woodridge & Co., F. W. Dabney and W. D. Cooper & Company, were re-elected as storage warehousemen. There are 39 applicants for prizes, there being at present 20 prize houses in the county. Of these 10 are in Hopkinsville, 4 in Pembroke and one each at Gracey, Kennedy, Lafayette, Newstead, Carl and Fruit Hill.

The place of book-keeper, now held by D. F. Smithson, will be filled by the Executive Committee on the recommendation of the new salesman. It pays $900 a year.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Causes Death of Mrs. Will Quisenberry.

Mrs. Mollie Quisenberry, wife of Mr. J. W. Quisenberry, died yesterday morning at her home, No. 733 North Main, after an illness of several weeks of stomach trouble. The deceased was formerly Miss Mollie Wright and was reared in the Sinking Fork neighborhood. She was a sister of Mr. Frank Wright, of this city. A husband and three children survive. She was a member of the Baptist church. The interment will take place in the family burying ground to-day.

SALES NOT LARGE

But Prices Were Up To the Schedule.

The local salesmen for the Association sold 48 hogheads of tobacco last week. Prices were up to the schedule. The Society of Equity gave out no report for the week, having about closed out the stock for the last year's crop. On account of the continued dry weather there has been very little done towards handling the crop of 1908, but as soon as there is a good rainfall something will be doing along this line.

COURT ADJOURNED

After the Jury Wheel Had Been Filled.

Circuit Court adjourned Saturday and the November term opened at Murray yesterday. The new jury commissioners, James Orten, J. W. Riley and Oscar Wilson completed the work of placing in the jury wheel the names of 500 men, from which the grand and petit juries will be drawn for the next twelve months.

A special term of court will commence the third Monday in February.

one week ahead of the regular term, and 15 unimportant cases were set for this special term, in order to relieve the crowded condition of the docket. The regular term will be for six weeks. There are two night rider cases on the docket. Two other parties under bonds were not indicted and they are now at liberty.

It is not believed that any further prosecutions will be attempted in this county under present conditions.

AGED PHYSICIAN

Passes Away After a Long Illness.

Dr. A. A. Hendrix, a prominent physician and leading citizen of Crofton, died yesterday morning. A general breaking down of his system, on account of his advanced age, 76 years, caused his death.

Dr. Hendrix was a native of Tennessee, but came to this county about fifty years ago, since which time he had practiced his profession continuously until about eight months ago, when his health failed. He was a Mason. Eight children, three sons and five daughters, survive him.

Wilkie, Chief of the Secret Service Division of the Treasury Department. The new counterfeit is an imitation of the "Indian heads" series of 1899, check letter "D," face number 1164; back plate number 732, W. T. Vernon, Register of the Treasury; Chas. H. A MIGHTY ROCK CRUSHER.

Grinds Up Stones at Rate of Eight Hundred Tons an Hour.
The largest rock crusher in the world is at South Pittsburg, Tenn., where it prepares all the rock used in a cement plant which turns out 4,000 barrels of cement per day, says Popular Mechanics. It crushes an exceedingly hard and tough limestone to a six inch size and reduces the rate of 800 tons per hour. Ninety per cent of this is under four inches and 30 per cent under two inches.

The crusher is eighteen feet eleven inches high, and its hopper has a diameter of twenty feet. Its weight is 425,000 pounds. The top shell of the machine is made in two pieces connected by fourteen inch bolts. Each half with its concave weighs 73,000 pounds. The main shaft weighs 33,000 pounds and the flywheel 12,000 pounds. The crushing head is seven feet high and sixty-five inches in diameter, weighing 32,000 pounds. The design of the crusher was based on an assumption of a crushing pressure near the bottom of the head of 1,500,000 pounds.

Sheeting at Balloons.

Explosives have recently been made in Berlin to ascertain the height at which a balloon may be considered immune from hostile rifle shots. Captive balloons were sent up, and they were shot at angles of from 15 to 45 degrees. Balloons traveling at a height of 1,000 to 2,000 feet were shot down only once out of six shots, while they were absolutely safe at a height of 3,000 yards. Even when struck, the damage to the gas bag was so small that the balloon was able to continue its journey for hours before the escaping gas made a landing necessary.—Scientific American.

CONCRETE WHARF PILES.

Simple Method of Embedding Em- ployed on Pacific Coast.

The construction of the municipal wharf for Berkeley, Cal., demonstrates that a much smaller concrete pile can be used and relied upon than has ever been accepted before. At the shore end of the approach the piles are twenty-two inches in diameter, while those beyond are two inches larger. The wharf consists of 450 concrete piles the average amount of concrete for each pile being two cubic yards, and 840 barrels of cement were used in making the concrete.

The piles are driven by using a wooden cylinder, which is first driven into the ground and the earth and mud within consolidated by means of a pump and hose. The hose is forced into the soft material inside the cylinder, and the pressure stirs up the mud, which flows over the top. The water is then siphoned out.

The driving of the cylinder is not so difficult as would first appear. It is easier to drive it while it is considered an insufficient depth. Some water is sure to remain in the bottom of the cylinder, and a small portion of dry cement is first shoveled into the bottom, followed with well tamped concrete. As the wooden cylinders are comparatively cheap, they are not removed. It is only a matter of time when the termites will remove them, and then the concrete will be exposed to doan's Kidney Pills."

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warning That No Hopkinsville Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy or short and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently.

W. E. Watson, living on Washington street, Elkton, Ky., says: "Kidney trouble bothered me a great deal for five or six years. I was troubled with a constant aching in my back at night and was prevented from sleeping. When I arose in the morning I would be lame and stiff, and feeling little like attending to my duties. Sharp twinges through my loins when stooping or lifting caused me additional misery, headaches and dizzy spells were of frequent occurrence, and I was subject to nervous spells. The kidney secretions were too frequent in action, especially at night when I would be forced to arise several times. At last it was my good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and I purchased them. They relieved me at once, and the contents of one box cured me permanently. I am very thankful to Doan's Kidney Pills."

The Andres Co.

came it was the only dolorant thing about in the drugging life. Now with a blind fatuousness she hugged it tighter to her bosom. One purpose possessed her to confront Harry Sanderson. What matter though she missed the results of the trial? She could not bring him to justice. If the truth lay at Aniston she would find it. She thought no farther than this. Once in Harry Sanderson's presence, what she should say or do she scarcely imagined. The horrifying question filled her thoughts to the exclusion of all that must follow its answer. It was surely and self-convinced she craved, only to read in his eyes the truth about the murder of Moreau.

She suddenly began to tremble. Would the doctors let her see him? What excuse could she give? If he was the man who had been in Hugh's cabin that night he had heard her speak, had known her there. He must have detected her secret, her coming least he have suspicion of her. Bishop Ludlow, he could gain her access to him. Injured, dying perhaps, maybe he did not guess that Hugh was in jeopardy for his crime. Guilty and dying, if he knew this, he would surely tell the truth. But if he died before she could reach him? The paper was torn days old. He might be dead already. She took heart, however, from the statement of his improved condition.

She sprang to her feet and looked at her cinteline watch. The eastbound express was overdue. There was no time to lose. Minutes might count. She examined her purse. She had money enough for her.

Five minutes later she was at the station, a scribbled note was on its way to Mrs. Halloran, and before a swaying red lantern the long incoming train was shuddering to a stop.

Chapter 29

IN the long hospital the air was cool and filtered, dark figures passed with soft footfalls and voices were measured and hushed. But no sense of gloom or despair had come to the man whose cracked body had burst tenderly borne there in the snowy dawn which saw the blackened ruins of Aniston's most perfect edifice.

Hugh had sunk into unconsciousness with the awe struck exclamation ringing through the air, "It's Harry Sanderson!" His bad dreams led to conscious knowledge with the same words racing in his brain. They impelled that so far as capture went the old, curious resemblance would stand his friend till he betrayed himself or till the existence of the real Harry Sanderson, his secret master, did so for him. The delusion must hold till he could have himself moved to some place where his secret would be safer, till he could get away.

This thought grew swiftly paramount; it overlapped the rigid agony of his hurt that made the bed on which he lay a fiery furnace; it gave more heat than the burning coal. He took up the difficult part and, after the superficial anguish dulled, complained no more and successfully conterfeited cheerfulness and betterment. He said nothing of the curiously recurrent and aickenling stab of pain, searching and deep seated, that took his breath and left each time an increased sense of weariness. He durst not hurt this night between, but must hide it the sooner to reach the hospital, where each hour brought nearer the inevitable disclosure.

He thanked fortune now for the chapel game. Few enough in Aniston would care to see the unfrocked, disgraced rector of St. James'. He did not know that the Bishop Ludlow had opened his own until the hour when he opened his eyes after a fitful sleep upon the latter's face.

The bishop was the first visitor, and it was his first visit, for he had been in a distant city at the time of the fire.

Waiting the waking, he had been mystified by the few visitors who had waited in the countenance of the man whose disappearance had cost him so many sleepless hours. The months of indulgence and rich living—on the money he had won from Harry—had taken away Hugh's slightness, and his fuller cheeks were now of the color of Hugh's. He had even distinguished new lines in the face on the pillow, an expression unfamiliar and puzzling. The firmness and strength were gone, and in their place was a haunting something that gave him a fitting suggestion of the disordered that he could not shake off.

Waiting, the unexpected sight of the bishop startled Hugh. To the good man pain he had turned his face away.

"My dear boy," the bishop had said, "they tell me you are stronger and better. I thank God for it!"

He spoke slowly and with deep feeling. "I could not tell to what extent he himself, in mistaken severity, had been responsible for that unaccustomed look? When Hugh did not answer the Bishop misconstrued the silence. He leaned over the bed. The big cool hand touched the fevered one on the white coverlet where the rubs of power had torn in amid the sweat.

"I am," he said, "you have suffered—you are suffering now. But think of me only as your friend. I ask no questions. We are going to begin where we left off."

"I would like to do that," said Hugh.

"We are going to begin where we left off." went your judgment on my plans. Aniston, I am bound to you, continued Harry," he went on. "There's a small card of visiting cards downstairs for you. But I imagine you haven't begun to receive yet, eh?"

"I've seen nobody," Hugh spoke hurriedly and hoarsely. "Tell the doctor to let me come—one no one but you can see up to it."

"Why, of course not," said the bishop quickly. "You need quiet, and the people can wait."

The bishop chatted awhile of the parish, Hugh replying only when he must, and went away heartened. Before he left Hugh saw his way to hasten his own going. On the next visit the seed was sown in the bishop's mind so cleverly that he thought the idea his own. That day he said to the surgeon in charge:

"It is gaining so rapidly I have been wondering if he couldn't be taken away where the climate will benefit him. Will be able to travel soon?"

"I suspect internal injury at first, but I imagine the worse he has to fear is the disfigurement. Mountain or sea air would do him good," he added reflectively. "What he will need is tonic and building up."

The bishop had resolved this in his mind, tucked away in the recesses which would be admirable for convalescence. He could arrange a special car, and he himself could make the journey with him. He proposed this to the surgeon and with his approval put his plan in motion. In two days more Hugh found his gold ticket ready.

The idea admirably fitted his necessity. The spot the bishop had selected was quiet and retired and, more, was near the port at which he could most readily take ship for South America. Only one reflection made him shiver—the route lay through the town of Smoky Mountain. Yet who would dare to go to the doctor from the law in the seduced ear that carried a sick man? The risk would be small enough, and it was the one way open.

On the last afternoon before the departure Hugh asked for the clothes he had worn when he was brought to the hospital, found the gold pieces he had snatched in the burning chancel and handed them back to the doctor's neck. They would suffice to buy his sea passage. The one red counter he had kept—it was from henceforth to be a reminder of the good resolutions he had made so long ago—he slipped into a pocket of the clothes he was to wear away, a suit of loose, comfortable tweeds.

Waiting restlessly for the hour of his going, Hugh asked for the newspapers. Since the first he had had them read to him each day, waiting fearfully for the hue and cry. But today the surgeon put his request aside.

"After you are there," he said, "if Bishop Ludlow will let you. Not now you are strong again, clothes, and I must run away while I can."

A quick look passed from him to his assistant as he spoke, for the newspapers that afternoon had worn startling headlines. The sordid affairs of a mining town across the ranges had little interest for Aniston, but the names of Stites and Moran on the clicking typewriters were well known to the physician. The professional estimation of the timber of human bodies wished, however, that no excitement should be added to the unavoidable fatigue of his patient's departure.

This fatigue was near to spelling defeat, after all, for the exertion brought again the dreadful stabbing pain, and again the agonized gasps, and again the agony where feeling ceased, consciousness passed and from which he struggled back finally to find the surgeon bending anxiously over him.

"I don't like that sinking spell," the latter confided to his assistant an hour later as they stood looking through the window after the receding steamer. "The doctor is pronounced. Yet he has complained of no pain. He will be in good hands at any rate." He tapped the glass musingly with his forefinger. "It's curious," he said after a pause. "Always liked Sanderson—in the pulpit. Somehow he doesn't appeal to me those rare days."

The sleek car which the bishop had ready had been made a pleasant interior. Fox boxes were in the corners, a caged canary swung from a bracket, and a softly cushioned couch had been prepared for the sick man. A moment before the start, as it was being coupled to the engine of the fast moving train, the bishop chatted with the conductor, a fidgeted messenger boy handed him a telegram. It read:

HOPKINSVILLEThe Place For New Enterprises.

No city within a large scope of territory offers such advantages for manufacturing industries as Hopkinsville. Wise management and adequate capital are all that is required.

As an illustration we notice the Mogul Wagon Co. has just decided a three per cent. dividend on its preferred stock on its first six months' business. This indicates the decided geographical advantage the company enjoys over the large northern factories who are compelled to come to Kentucky and Tennessee for spokes, hubs, sideboards, axles, bolsters—in short for all the lumber that goes into a wagon, and then pay freight both ways on this material in order to compete with the Mogul Company in this and southern territory.

This immense advantage, amounting to a large proportion of a legitimate profit, is going to make of this Hopkinsville enterprise a big industry, fraught with great possibilities and importance to the future of our city. In addition to this the enterprise appeals to our people as a home industry, which will work up our native resources in the way of timber and bring in return from distant markets the dear dollars of our daddies.

The success of this, the latest and biggest of our new industries, is gratifying indeed to our citizens, and will result in the establishment of more manufacturers for our growing city. Come on with your projects, gentlemen, Hopkinsville will get in.

I. C. PAYS $200,000For Line Running Into Providence.

Irving H. Wheatcroft, president of the Kentucky Valley Railroad Company, returned from British Columbia a few days ago and while in the city on Saturday, Oct. 31st, transferred the Kentucky Valley railroad to the Illinois Central railroad company, says the Providence enterprise. Negotiations for the sale of the road have been pending for some time, and the sale was finally made by Mr. Wheatcroft a few days ago. The price secured for this valuable piece of property is of course a secret, but it is currently rumored that the consideration was approximately $200,000.

AMUSEMENTS.DRY STREAM.*Suddenly Rises without Rain and Begins Running.

W. F. Mann presents a dramatization of Mary J. Holmes' well known and popular novel, "Tempest and Sunshine," by Lem B. Parker. The play has as its foundation the contrasts of character in the two sisters, out of which grow naturally and inevitably the episodes and entanglements which combine to make the plot. Dr. Laeoy is, by virtue of his relation with them both so involved in their interests as to become the central figure of the story. "Tempest's" rather passionate nature leads her into mistakes which bring her the most serious consequences, though she is by no means the sort of woman whose conduct can be made the subject of reprobation. The villain of the play is personated by the village postmaster, Joseph Dunn, at first a mysterious individual, but who afterwards turns out to be rather a common kind of criminal.

The play is entertaining, and will hold, pure, sweet, and an idyll of loyalty of love thrilled through and through with the tender grace of a day that is dead.

All who desire to see a first class production, presented in a first class manner, should not fail to see "Tempest and Sunshine" on Nov. 11, at Holland's Open House.

MUSICAL COMEDY COMPANY.

Robert Athon, manager of Zinn's Musical Comedy Company, that clever organization that soon appears in our city, is one of the most widely known theatrical managers on the road, and scarcely a town Mr. Athon gets in, that he does not know some one. Although only a young man, he has been in the theatrical business all his life, and it was because of his well known business ability, that Mr. Zinn engaged his services to pilot the Zinn show over the country.

The company numbers thirty people, and has among its members such well known stars as Tony West, late of Weber & Fields New York company; Jake Clifford, late comedian of "The Girl Comedy," and Sam Hyams, who the past three seasons sang all the tenor roles with Aborn Opera Co. Andy Budzelen is probably one of the best characters men in the musical comedy business. Robert Athon, in addition to managing the show, is also a comedian of national reputation, having held the position as comedian at Keith & Proctors, Fifth Ave., N.Y., for three seasons. When this clever trio of funmakers get started, it is claimed they would make a mule laugh. They will be here with the Zinn show Nov. 19, 20 and 21.
